

Reilly finally gets up the courage to tell Erin he loves her, but doesn't get the response he was hoping to get.

Erin: It really is a beautiful day out today, isn't it?

Reilly: Yeah, it's great. Hey, Erin...uh...can I talk to you about something?

Erin: Sure. What is it?

Reilly: I was just... uh... I've been wanting to say... I am in love with you.

Erin: What?

Reilly: I'm really sorry if that's weird for you to hear, but I needed you to hear it. And this may not be the best timing, I know that...I just needed you to know.

Erin: Oh, wow. I'm just not sure what to say to that. I've just always thought of us as friends.

Reilly: Well, I was hoping for it to be more than that.

Erin: I can't. Really. I'm really sorry...if you misinterpreted anything. It's probably my fault.

Reilly: No...no...not your fault. I'm just sorry I misinterpreted our friendship.